

PHYSICAL HEALTH CONSEQUENCES OF EARLY SOCIOECONOMIC HARDSHIP: MECHANISMS AND MODERATORS

Tuesday, March 15 | 12:10 – 1:30pm
Andrews Conference Room 2203 SS&H

EDITH CHEN is a Professor of Psychology at Northwestern University. Dr. Chen's research seeks to understand why poverty is associated with poor physical health outcomes in children, with a focus on the psychological and biological mechanisms that explain these relationships.

GREG MILLER is a Professor of Psychology at Northwestern University. Dr. Miller's research examines the behavioral and biological mechanisms through which stress affects health. He is President Elect of the Academy of Behavioral Medicine Research.

