

The Effects of Local Job Loss on Child Outcomes

Wednesday, May 30 | 12:00-1:30 pm | Andrews Conference Room, 2203 SS&H

Visiting Scholar: Elizabeth O. Ananat May 29 - June 1

Given the magnitude of the recent recession, it is important to understand the effects of large-scale job losses on children and their educational outcomes. Has the economic downturn had an affect on all children? Just the children who experience parental job loss? Scholar Elizabeth Ananat discusses the important implications of the recession on children and for school accountability schemes.

ELIZABETH O. ANANAT is an Assistant Professor of Public Policy Studies and Economics at Duke University. She received a B.A. in political economy and mathematics at Williams College in 1999, a master's degree in public policy from the Ford School at the University of Michigan in 2001, and a Ph.D. in economics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 2006. Her research focuses on the intergenerational dynamics of poverty and inequality.

UC DAVIS

CENTER FOR POVERTY RESEARCH

(530) 752-0401 | povertycenter@ucdavis.edu
poverty.ucdavis.edu