

For-Profit Colleges, Community Colleges, and Associates Degree Receipt

Friday, April 24, 2015 | 12:10-1:30pm | Andrews Conference Room 2203 SS&H

David Harding is an Associate Professor of Sociology at the University of California, Berkeley. Professor Harding studies poverty and inequality, urban neighborhoods, education, incarceration, and prisoner reentry. His current projects include the social and economic reintegration of former prisoners, neighborhoods and prisoner reentry, the effects of incarceration on crime, employment, and health, causal inference for contextual effects research, for-profit colleges, educational attainment, and labor market outcomes, and the role of neighborhood context in adolescent romantic relationships and sexual behavior.

CENTER FOR
Poverty Research
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, DAVIS

poverty.ucdavis.edu